

A SOMATIC GUIDE

Where Emotions Live in Your Body

+ The 5-Minute Reset

MARILYN BURRELL

Your Mind, Body & God

Your Body Knows Before Your Mind Does

You've felt it — the tightness in your chest before a difficult conversation. The pit in your stomach when something's wrong. The tension in your shoulders you can't seem to release.

That's not random. That's your body speaking.

Emotions aren't just feelings — they're physical events. They live in your tissues, your muscles, your nervous system. And when you don't process them, they don't disappear. They accumulate.

The body keeps the score. It always tells the truth — even when the mind tries to lie.

This guide will teach you two things:

PART ONE: THE BODY MAP

Learn where different emotions typically live in your body — and how to read your own signals.

PART TWO: THE 5-MINUTE RESET

A simple daily practice to clear emotional residue and return to zero — that calm, clear, grounded state where you're not carrying anything.

This isn't about suppressing emotions or "staying positive." It's about feeling what's there so it can move through you — instead of getting stuck.

Let's begin with the map.

The Somatic Body Map

Different emotions tend to settle in different areas of the body. This isn't mystical — it's physiological. Your nervous system routes emotional energy through specific pathways.

Body Area	Common Emotions Stored	Physical Signals
Head / Temples	Overthinking, worry, mental overload	Headaches, pressure, foggy thinking
Jaw / Face	Anger held back, things unsaid	Clenching, TMJ, tight facial muscles
Throat	Suppressed expression, silenced voice	Tightness, lump in throat
Shoulders / Neck	Burden, responsibility, carrying too much	Tension, stiffness, pain
Chest / Heart	Grief, heartbreak, love, longing	Tightness, heaviness, aching
Upper Back	Feeling unsupported, betrayal	Tension between shoulder blades
Stomach / Solar Plexus	Anxiety, fear, powerlessness	Butterflies, nausea, pit in stomach
Lower Belly	Shame, sexuality, creativity blocks	Heaviness, disconnection, numbness
Lower Back	Financial stress, fear about survival	Pain, tightness, weakness
Hips	Old trauma, things you "sit on"	Tightness, restricted movement
Legs / Feet	Feeling ungrounded, fear of moving forward	Restlessness, weakness

IMPORTANT NOTE

This map is a starting point, not a rulebook. Your body has its own language. Pay attention to YOUR patterns. Where do YOU feel stress? Sadness? Anger? Joy?

Your Personal Body Map

Now it's your turn. Think about the last few weeks. Where have you felt tension, discomfort, or holding? What emotions might be connected?

Map Your Patterns

When I'm stressed, I feel it in my:

What does it feel like? (tight, heavy, hot, numb, etc.)

When I'm anxious, I feel it in my:

What does it feel like?

When I'm sad, I feel it in my:

What does it feel like?

When I'm angry, I feel it in my:

What does it feel like?

When I'm at peace, I feel it in my:

What does it feel like?

THE BODY-EMOTION CONNECTION

The more you practice noticing where emotions live in YOUR body, the faster you'll catch them — before they become chronic tension, pain, or illness. Awareness is the first step to clearing.

What If I Can't Feel My Body?

If you tried the body map exercise and felt... nothing? You're not broken. You're protected.

Many people have learned to disconnect from their bodies. It's actually a survival skill — if feeling was too painful, your nervous system learned to turn the volume down.

Why This Happens

- Trauma — The body stores what the mind can't process. Disconnection keeps you "safe" from feeling it.
- Living in your head — Our culture rewards thinking over feeling. You may have been trained out of body awareness.
- Overwhelm — When there's too much to feel, numbness is a protective response.
- Chronic stress — Being in fight-or-flight too long disconnects you from subtler sensations.

The good news: Reconnection is possible. The body is patient. It's been waiting for you to come home.

MY STORY: HOW PILATES BROUGHT ME HOME

I was burned out. Disconnected. I'd spent years as a grief counselor, holding space for everyone else's pain while ignoring my own body's signals. I was pouring from an empty cup — and I couldn't even feel how empty it was.

Then I found Pilates. It wasn't just exercise. It was a conversation with my body. The slow, precise movements forced me to pay attention. To notice which muscles were firing. To feel where I was holding.

Pilates brought me home to myself. For the first time in years, I could feel my body — not as a burden to manage, but as a partner to listen to. That reconnection changed everything.

Doorways Back to Your Body

Pilates was my path, but it's not the only one. Here are other ways to rebuild body awareness — choose what resonates with you.

Practice	Why It Works
Slow, mindful movement Pilates, yoga, tai chi, qigong	Forces attention inward. You can't rush — you have to feel.
Breathwork Box breathing, 4-7-8, holotropic	Breath is the bridge between mind and body. Follow it inward.
Water immersion Baths, float tanks, swimming	Water creates sensation across your whole body. Hard to ignore.
Self-massage / touch Foam rolling, dry brushing	Physical touch wakes up nerve endings. Start with pressure.
Temperature contrast Cold plunge, sauna, contrast showers	Strong sensation cuts through numbness. You WILL feel this.
Walking barefoot Grass, sand, earth	Grounds you literally. Feet have thousands of nerve endings.

START WHERE YOU ARE

If you can't feel subtle sensations yet, start with obvious ones — temperature, pressure, movement. The subtlety will come. Your body hasn't forgotten how to feel. It's just been protecting you. As you build safety, sensation returns.

READY FOR THE RESET?

Now that you understand the body map — and have doorways to reconnect if needed — let's learn the daily practice that clears what you're carrying. Turn the page for the 5-Minute Reset.

The 5-Minute Reset

Here's a simple daily practice to clear what's there, so you don't carry yesterday into today.

Zero is that clear, calm, grounded state where you're not carrying anything. No resentment. No anxiety. No weight. Just presence.

This practice takes 5 minutes. Do it every morning, every evening, or anytime you feel yourself accumulating emotional weight.

5:00

minutes to reset

What You'll Need

- A quiet space (or headphones)
- A comfortable seated or lying position
- Permission to feel whatever arises

The Goal

This isn't meditation. It's not about emptying your mind or achieving bliss. It's about checking in with your body, acknowledging what's there, and letting it move — so you return to zero.

REMEMBER

Emotions want to move. They become problems when they get stuck. This practice gives them permission to flow through.

The 5-Minute Reset Protocol

1 Arrive (30 seconds)

Close your eyes. Take three deep breaths — in through the nose, out through the mouth. Let your body settle. Feel the surface beneath you. You're here. You're safe.

2 Scan (1 minute)

Slowly move your attention through your body, from head to feet. Don't try to change anything — just notice. Where is there tension? Heaviness? Numbness? Ease? Just notice. No judgment.

3 Name (30 seconds)

Pick the area calling for attention. Place your hand there if it helps. Ask: "What is this?" Name the sensation (tight, heavy, sharp). Then ask: "What emotion might be here?"

4 Feel (2 minutes)

This is the clearing part. Instead of pushing the feeling away, breathe into it. Inhale — direct your breath to that area. Exhale — imagine the emotion softening, releasing. Let sounds and movement come if they want to. You're not analyzing. You're feeling.

5 Return to Zero (1 minute)

Take three final breaths. Feel your body now — lighter, clearer, more spacious. Say silently or aloud: "I release what isn't mine to carry. I return to zero." Open your eyes. You're here. You're clear.

Quick Reference Card

Print this page and keep it where you'll see it daily.

THE 5-MINUTE RESET

1

ARRIVE (30 sec) — 3 deep breaths. Settle. You're here.

2

SCAN (1 min) — Head to feet. Notice tension, heaviness, ease.

3

NAME (30 sec) — What's the sensation? What emotion?

4

FEEL (2 min) — Breathe into it. Let it move. No resistance.

5

RETURN (1 min) — "I release what isn't mine. I return to zero."

When to Use This Practice

Situation	When to Reset
Morning routine	Before checking your phone — start the day clear
Evening wind-down	Before bed — release the day so you sleep clean
After difficult conversations	Process what came up before it settles in
When triggered	As soon as you can — don't let it compound
Feeling "off" for no reason	Your body knows something — check in

THE COMPOUND EFFECT

Done daily, this practice prevents emotional buildup. You stop carrying yesterday into today. You stay closer to zero — that clear, grounded, present state where life flows easier.

Ready to Go Deeper?

This guide gave you the map and the daily practice.
The full course gives you the complete system.

Get to Zero

Transform Triggers Into Teachers and Finally Feel Free in Your Own Body

6 Modules • 30 Lessons • Guided Practices • Community Support

What You'll Learn

Module	Focus
1. The Zero Point Philosophy	Why "zero" matters and what it actually means
2. The Body as Portal	Advanced somatic awareness techniques
3. Triggers as Gifts	Reframe what activates you into curriculum
4. The Clearing Process	The full protocol for deep emotional release
5. Gratitude Over Forgiveness	The deeper clearing most people miss
6. Living at Zero	Maintain your clear state in daily life

Join the waitlist for founding member pricing:

yourmindbodyandgod.com

About Marilyn

I've spent my career studying human transformation — through psychology, ministry, the body, and my own lived experience.

I earned my BS in Psychology because I wanted to understand why we do what we do. Then I became a grief and loss counselor, working with families and individuals in low-income school districts and on military bases. I sat with people in their deepest pain and learned that healing isn't cognitive — it's felt.

But I was burning out. So I turned to movement — and Pilates brought me home to myself. I earned 70+ certifications and became a master trainer, not just because I loved the work, but because I finally understood: you can't feed others from an empty tank.

I pursued my MBA to understand systems and scale. I became a Master Restorative Health Practitioner, specializing in holistic health that includes spiritual and emotional wellness. And I was ordained as a minister through Bhava Spiritual Mission with a specialty in counseling.

*When you commit to clearing — really clearing — everything in your life shifts.
Relationships. Health. Purpose. All of it.*

Now I teach what I learned. The integration of mind (psychology), body (somatic awareness), and God (spiritual practice) — applied to the daily work of staying clear, grounded, and free.

CREDENTIALS & TRAINING

Education: BS Psychology • MBA

Ministry: Ordained Minister, Bhava Spiritual Mission (Counseling Specialty)

Clinical: Grief & Loss Counselor — School Districts & Military Bases

Holistic Health: Master Restorative Health Practitioner

Movement: 70+ Fitness Certifications • Master Pilates Trainer

CONNECT WITH ME

Website: yourmindbodyandgod.com

TikTok: @YourMindBodyAndGod

Email: marilyn@yourmindbodyandgod.com